BUSINESS REVIVAL "ALREADY BEGUN"

White House Sees Labor Demand and Upward Swing of Pendulum.

The business revival foreseen by many government officials as due in the near future already is under way it was declared at the White House where reports were made at the steel manufacturers' conference Thursday night of recent material increases in

In connection with their discussion of President Harding's suggestion that the twelve-hour day be abolished in the steel industry, several manufacturers commented on the shortage of unskilled labor which was already apparent, and which, it was predicted, might become a matter of moment if the upward swing of the trade pendulum continued through the next ninety days.

The employment problem in Ohio, Detroit and Chicago apparently had been temporarily solved, Mr. Harding was told, and industry continued on the upgrade. Agriculture also was reported on the road toward rehabilireported on the road toward renabilitation. The most serious complaint which now persists from the agricultural classes was said to be from stock raisers who have experienced difficulty in obtaining adequate fluorities.

Believes Revival Under Way. President Harding was said to be-lieve that a wholesome revival in business and industry was definitely under way and would continue unless Namuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement declaring the meeting was "typical of present day big business, that it should use the White House as a rostrum from which to give the country " " What the American people are accustomed to call bunk."

The conference was itself "some-thing of an indication of the public condemnation of steel trust prac-tices." Mr. Gompers declared, char-acterizing the Gary statement "as an example of cynical deception" in its outline of plans for investigation of example of cynical deception" in its outline of plans for investigation of the twelve-hour-day situation.

The White House view, however, was that almost unanimous sentiment existed ameng the steel men at the conference for a continuation of the three-shift eight-hour day, which was put into force in some parts of the industry during the slack labor period, and which gave more men employment. The steel representatives agreed with the President in principle, that it was a good idea tives agreed with the President in principle, that it was a good idea now to abolish the twelve-hour day, but that the greatest obstacle to this was to get the consent of the workers themselves.

The explanation was made that when the tide of business was running high the workers showed a tendency to take on the twelve-hour shift and thereby make more money for themselves, and in fact some of the steel manufacturers reported that men were quitting the eighthour shift and joining the twelve-hour work day program.

PROGRESS IN STUDY OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Nation-Wide Survey by Engineering Council Includes Industrial Depressions.

Rapid progress in the nation-wide study of unemployment and business cycles is reported by the American Engineering Council of the Federated American Engineering Societies, whose thirty member societies directed the work of 150 groups of engineers in every part of the country in co-operation with the President's conference on unemployment under the chairmanship of Herbert Hoover. Mr. Hughes Modifies Rules.

After three days' trial of advanced hours, Secretary Hughes has found it advisable to modify the new rule in respect to the daily press conferences at the State Department. When the departmental hours were advanced, the hours for the press conferences also were advanced from 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Experience showed that so little progress had been made by 9:30 o'clock, especially in the consideration of the incoming mail which is still delivered under the old system, that there really was nothing to "report" at that hour. Consequently the time for the morning press conference has been put back to 10:30 o'clock in the hope that by that time there may be some "fresh information to impart."

Under the new working system, press conferences at the War Department are held at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. an hour earlier than heretofore, but are subject to another change.
